Description. A long fermented bread made with our 10 year old levain made of wheat and rye flour. The long rise gives a nice tangy flavour to the bread, it is richer, the texture has a brilliant and waxy feeling with a nice strenght. The wooden basket keeps the bread moist and the crust craggy. Pretty much everyone's favourite.

It turns out not so much . You could taste the individual elements but there was something lacking - maybe too aromatic , maybe too many herbs . The size was a bit small for a loaf , we had it as part of a cheese platter with white wine . Although i had good breads from Celtic Bakers in the past , this one needs a bit or a revisit
